

MORNING BRIEFING

Bonds' Motto:
Only in God,
Cash He Trusts

The San Francisco Giants' Barry Bonds and Matt Williams were discussing trust with Steve Marantz of The Sporting News.

Bonds: "I don't trust anybody. I trust God."

Williams: "You trust me."

Bonds: "You're crazy. I like you. I don't trust you."

Williams: "You trust me."

Bonds: "Get out."

Williams: "Don't lie."

Bonds: "I trust you to watch my bat."

Williams: "Would you trust me to watch your kids?"

Bonds: "Oh yeah. 'Cause you got money. 'Cause I know how you are with your own kids. But you wouldn't trust that man [Marantz] 'cause you don't know him."

Marantz: "Right. You only trust other superstars."

Bonds: "I only trust other people with millions. 'Cause I know at least I'm going to get some money if something happens."

Sporting News September 1996

Clipped By:

marantzsteve696

Sat, Apr 1, 2017